Every Move Is With Direct Bearing on Presidential Campaign.

Washington, D. C., April 4 .- No opening of Congress in many years has had such interest and importance as workers in both political parties attach to the beginning of the Sixty second Congress. Every move which has been made and will be made is with direct bearing on the presidential campaign for 1912, the foundation of which is to be laid in the record of this Congress. The spirit of the contesting parties manifest at the outset is in vivid contrast. The Democrats, absolutely in the majority in the House and with materially increased strength in the Senate, are at once jubilant and cau-

They are confident that they have proceeded thus far in a way to attract row popular approval, but they are sensible of the responsibilities upon them and wary of pitfalls which in the nature of things will crowd their way. Their chief asset is harmony, and this they possess at the commencement in notable degree. The Republican Situation.

The Republicans are in more desperate case than they have been for many years. Torn with dissension in the past twelve months, they seem only now to have awakened to the menace of their situation, and in last night's caucus made the first effective effort toward reunion of the factions.

The Democrats in the House have a clean-cut, specific and, they believe, popular legislative program to enact. The Republicans will be reduced to the role of criticism, and in that will will be divided, since one faction sympa-thizes in the main with the Democratic program, and if it were inaugurated

The Democrats are fighting for victory, the Republicans fighting for their life. President Taft looks on, hoping This success for his party, but determined the success for his party, but determined upon securing remedial legislation regardless of partisanship and from growth of hair, whatever hands it may come.

Lenders Lend Approval.

The new Congress starts with the best wishes of Democratic national leaders, several of whom are on the scene. Mr. Bryan, watchful for the principles of progressiveness in his party, for which he has fought, applands the opening. Mr. Harmon, pop-ularly classed as personification of the more conservative element of the Democrats, is equally enthusiastic at the "fine running start" his party has

The Beautiful Hair of English Women

(Annie Bly in N. Y. Graphic.)

The long, abundant and glossy tresses of English women are not due to hair tonics and heroic shampooing. There is a general belief over there that the less water put on the hair the better it is: they say wetting "takes the life out" and leaves the hair dull, brittle and colorless. English women with hair rich in color, clean and wholesome-and plenty of ithave told me they attribute it to dry shampooing two or three times a week. They mix four ounces of therox with four ounces of orris root and sprinkle a table-spoonful of this mixture on the head; then brush the powder thoroughly through under Republican auspices instead of the hair. They thus also avoid the danger of catching cold and the discomfort that accompanies washing, rinsing and drying

The literal fulfilment of that promise which so nearly affects the comfort and happiness of millions we have begun—and we began at the proper place—by cutting down the running expenses of the House by more than $188,000 per annum. Economy, like charity, should begin at home. That's where we began. We cannot with straight faces and clear consciences reform expenses elsewhere, unless we reform expenses elsewhere, unless we reform them at the fountain head. The Democratic caucus deserves well of the country for taking this long and important step in the direction of economy all along the line.

Deconomy Is Urged.

"The Constitution gives the House the practical control of the pursestrings of the country, and the House should insist resolutely and firmly on exercising that control to the end that the appropriation bills may be reduced to the needs of the government, economically and effectively administered. It is our duty to provide every dollar needed for the proper and economical conduct of the government, but it is equally our duty to prevent waste and extravagance in public expenditures, for we should never forget that it is a difficult task for millions of families to live now in decency and comfort. Surely it is the part of wisdom, statesmanship, humanitarianism and patriotism to legislate so as to reduce their burdens to the minimum.
The resuscitation of the Holman rule will help along in this matter. No good citizen desires to cripple the government in any legitimate function, but no good citizen desires that the people be loaded down with unnecessary
